WHO IS BRISBANE VALLEY PROTEIN PRECINCT?

Farming Family Owners

BVPP is the vision of fourth generation farming siblings Duncan Brown and Selena Gomersall who combine their entrepreneurial talents and love of the land with social purpose objectives.

Duncan is a Queensland businessman who combines his love of farming and agriculture with social purpose objectives.

His experience in agribusiness encompasses cattle, poultry and property development across south east Queensland while his community and not-for-profit bona fides include founder and executive chairman of youth advocacy group the Artesian Foundation.

Selena is a registered psychologist and both a founder and the clinical director of Outback Futures, a not-for-profit mental and allied health services provider to rural and remote Queenslanders.

The BVPP Directors' connection to the land and to pioneering agriculture in the Somerset region goes back four generations.

Duncan and Selena's connection to the land and their family history of pioneering Queensland farming and food production in the Somerset region goes back four generations to the 1900s.

The project has engaged several market-leading, welfare-orientated protein producers as specialist advisors to the BVPP Directors.

WHO IS BRISBANE VALLEY PROTEIN PRECINCT?

Safika Holdings chief executive Moss Ngoasheng and non-executive chairman Sakumzi Macozoma.

Project Partners

BVPP has already attracted new international capital to Queensland and is the first Australian agricultural investment for South African investment house, Safika Holdings.

Safika Holdings is a significant minority shareholder in BVPP. It has interests across the industrial, financial services, mining and exploration, commodity marketing, transport and logistics, online education, health, property, communications and aerospace sectors.

Safika's executive includes some of South Africa's most prominent business and political identities, having worked closely with former President Nelson Mandela.

Safika also has other Australian investment interests in Melbourne-based private investment and advisory firm, The Wingate Group, online training provider Learning Seat, and TrakkaCorp, a manufacturer of high powered searchlights for airborne, marine and land-based operations.

Mr Macozoma as a staffer to the late Nelson Mandela.
